Chester Himes's 1945 novel If He Hollers Let Him Go portrays the harsh truths of black life in white society during the 1940s. The plot follows four days in the life of Robert "Bob" Jones, a young black man working as a leaderman in a shipyard in Los Angeles during World War II. Bob narrates the novel in the first person—which means the story is told from Bob's perspective—and the highly compressed, fast pace of the plot mimics the tough-guy style of 1930s and 1940s detective novels.

If He Hollers Let Him Go. Although the city of Dayton is small and has been hit hard by the decline of industry, in Xenia and Yellow Springs the land is green, fecund, and alive, even in the relentless heat of summer. Xenia is three miles from where the first private black college, Wilberforce, opened, in 1856, to meet the educational needs of the growing population of freed blacks that crossed the Ohio River.
